TO THE PEOPLE.

It is well known that Kervours or sick HeadAches, is not only a common disease in the Wesern country, but that it has been considered incusble. Such an anomaly, indeed, have medical on believed it to be, that an effort even to relieve is rarely attempted, and an endeavor to cure it, till less frequently made. These considerations in part, have induced me to try in my own practee a prescription from a distinguished physician of the United States, which I am pleased to say, has, in nearly every instance, either prevented a paroxyism, relieved it when formed, or cured the the disease. Until recently, the medicines composing the prescription, though known, and separately used for hundreds of years; have never been understood or appreciated ascombined and applied to the cure of usrrous diseases. The question so often asked for centuries past, and never satisfactorily answered until the present, may now be nut with a reasonable expectation of meeting with a response, forced from the hearts of greatful thousands, who may be relieved or cured of that truly distressing disease, nervous or sick headache. In

I will further state that nervous or sick headache is justly attributed to derangement of either the stomach or liver, or in some cases of both. The brain, being intimately related, by association of sympashy, to every other part of the system; and being also the great fountain, whence all the organs receive their vital power, as well as the sentine, as it were, which takes cognizance of all actions, healthy or diseased, continually going on in the body, must of mecessity and from the nature of things, be affected in one way or another from derangement of organs with which it is so intimately associated. His tavelling agent a few months ago, left several bottles of it at this office, with instructions not to press the sale of it on the public, until its efficacy had been thoroughly tested. We have disposed of a few bottles of it to persons afflicted with that dreadful malady, sick headache, and are gratified to state, that in every instance the remedy afforded the desired relief.
